

Obama's Hidden Past & Fraudulent Birth Certificate

~white lies vs Obama lies

The arc of Barry Obama's entire adult life has been one of deception. He deceived his Marxist benefactors, (the parents of terrorist Bill Ayers) who funded some or most of his college education, by portraying himself as a needy socialist Kenya-born foreign student.

He deceived his Saudi Arabian billionaire benefactor (Prince Walid bin Talal) who helped open the door for admission to Harvard by being a religious chameleon pretending to be an Islamic-honoring western closet-Muslim, -a pretense that was perhaps half sincere but also half insincere and deceitful since it was dishonestly used to obtain a benefit from him.

He deceived the universities he attended in ways we are not able to ascertain because he has sealed every academic record that exists.

He deceived his minister, irReverend Wright, into believing that he was of the same mind-set, -one of prejudice against Jews, white America, the American government, and America's founders, even though Obama was not similarly strongly prejudiced.

He deceived the voters in his state and national Senate elections by presenting himself as a cosmopolitan pan-national Kenya-born great uniter, and a practical, hands-on effective leader when he was no kind of leader, nor would accomplish anything of note.

And worse of all, he deceived the American electorate in every way possible when he ran for President. After passing himself off as having been born in Kenya for perhaps two decades, he is all of a sudden a native-born son of Hawaii.

Of course that fit the narrative of his ghost-written "auto-biography" titled "dreams from my father" (but completely contradicted his self-penned bio on his publisher's website in which he claimed to be Kenya-born for 17 years).

“Barack Obama's biographical brief was edited repeatedly over 17 years, but [Kenyan birthplace changed just weeks after his presidential run announced”*]

He then leveraged the Hawaiian birth lie to deceive every ignorant fellow citizen into thinking that that alone qualified him as being a constitutionally eligible candidate to be President even though he was not at all a natural born citizen as the Constitution requires.

When a legal council for the Hawaiian government refused to certify him as constitutionally eligible and qualified to be placed on their ballot, Obama and the DNC leadership altered their party's candidate-certification form to exclude any mention of being constitutionally eligible, then pressured the Hawaiian officials to accept the redacted version of the party certification document. Thus they deceived all the gullible state officials in every other state in the union who weren't aware of a lack of a Hawaiian hospital birth record, thereby guaranteeing that his name would not be barred from their state ballots.

He surfed on top of the wave of the electorate's and the media's constitutional ignorance and their willingness to believe anything, and thereby left everyone self-deceived by the misconception that native-born citizens are the same as natural born citizens, and therefore fulfill the presidential eligibility requirement of the Constitution.

But the American voters were not the only ones he deceived. He also deceived himself into believing he could accomplish things that were in fact impossible and even preposterous. There's no deceiver like a self-deceived deceiver.

Then he finally topped off all of his deceptions with a counterfeit image of an official Hawaiian birth certificate. Almost everything about its release is soaked in deception and falsehood, -from the concocted story of how it was acquired, to the story of why it wasn't previously shared, -to it being securely enshrouded in attorney-client privilege, -to it's non-connection to any actual physical paper original, -to its purely digital nature, -to its manifestly manipulated multi-layered constitution that no scan would nor could ever produce, -to its lack of any certification or authentication, including the absence of the official signature of the state registrar, and lack of the state seal, along with the truth that it was not an image of an actual birth record but was merely a concocted digital abstract produced in an image-editing program.

Falsehood and deception have been the hallmark characteristic of his entire adult life, centered on the lie that he was born in Kenya, or the lie that he was born in Hawaii. He knows that one or both are lies but he won't let the American people know the truth because he can't allow anyone to see the original paper record filed with the Hawaiian Dept. of Health, nor the micro-film image of it, nor the birth certificate that he has had & used all of his adult life. He won't allow that because they would show something that he does not want anyone to see, something that would ruin the public perception of his presidential eligibility.

If the public falsely thinks that anyone born in the U.S. can be President, but he was born outside of the U.S., then he would be in big trouble. Everyone knows that John McCain was born in Panama and not America, but by being the son of American parents, he is eligible to be President, but if Obama had been born in Panama, who would think that he would also be eligible? No one. He would doubly be a foreigner, -by paternity and birth location.

He can't allow anyone to suspect that that was the actual circumstance of his birth. In his case, the somewhere else wouldn't have been Panama, but would have been Kenya or Vancouver, Canada, -just a two hour drive from Seattle, -the city where his mother was living during the summer of 1961.

Deception is not accomplished solely by lies that are told, but by truth that is withheld, -truth that is hidden or unavailable, such as a marriage certificate for his parents, wedding photos, honeymoon photos, -some record of testimony as to where his mother was living between February and August of 1961, or photos of his pregnant mother, photos of himself as a newborn in her arms, any photos taken in the hospital or at home after delivery, witnesses to her pregnancy, witnesses to a relationship between her and his father, witnesses to his birth or his mother's stay in the maternity ward where he was supposedly born, including the other women who delivered babies at the same time in the same hospital named on his 9-layer pdf birth certificate image, -women who would never have forgotten a Negro baby with an African father born to a white teenage.

The mother of the twins born on Aug 5th in the hospital where Obama was supposedly delivered the day before never saw him nor his mother there, and she's one of his fans.

The chief characteristic of his origin is a total absence of any records or witnesses. If he were just another white baby born to just another white female then who would remember his birth? But he was as different from the mundane as is possible without being fathered by an alien species. Consider; a father from a different country, a different continent, a different nationality, and above all, a different race, (and with a most unusual name).

Human memory is not so pathetic that a black baby born to a white teenager would have been forgotten, ever. Yet no witnesses exist. How is that possible if his fake birth certificate's narrative is true? One or the other of two possibilities has to be true and one has to be false. Either human memory is crap, or his birth certificate "facts" are crap.

It can't possibly be neither.

Were Ann Dunham & Obama Sr. Really Married?

by Nick Chase July 2012

American Thinker (excerpt)

Producing a "birth-certificate" forgery is a big scam to cover up a minor fact -- that the Dunham/Obama marriage was not a real marriage. Is it really worth the political risk of having the scam exposed?

Perhaps not to you or me -- but we're normal people. The supposedly storybook nature of the first two years of this marriage was central to the Obama 2008 presidential campaign; it appears in Dreams from My Father; and the president occasionally repeats the myth, as in this speech (excerpted here) to students at Wakefield High School, Arlington, Virginia, on September 8, 2009:

...My father left my family when I was two years old, and I was raised by a single mom who had to work and who struggled at times to pay the bills and wasn't always able to give us the things that other kids had.

So this is how we should learn to think of it? Why protect a grown man capable of standing on his own two feet, Nick? There is evidence of forgery on the certificate he presented. That's a crime he has committed and even more embarrassing and damning than finding out his mother was deceived by his father. Even if he is embarrassed, he still had to provide it to government agencies issuing driver's licenses and passports, as well as Occidental, Harvard, and Columbia, didn't he? Furthermore, there's no reason for any local, state, or federal official in America to perjure himself or nullify his oath of office to protect Obama's pride by covering up the truth when it is required to be transparent by law.

My list of news agencies, journalists, and opinion writers that I will trust let alone bother to read has lost another. The moral of this article and many others: It's much better to be thought of as stupid rather than admit to being evil, as we know from both Eric Holder and Barack Obama. And it's much better to get us all to think of his missing birth information as merely embarrassing, rather than treasonous, deceptive, fraud, evil, and perhaps even identity theft.

It was ridiculously easy to get a Hawaii b/c in that era, indeed Hawaii was a new state that fostered a wide-open back door for illegal immigration into the U.S. even into the 1970's. All one needed to do was go into the Hawaii Dept. of Health, fill out forms and a b/c was issued. One did not even need to have a babe in arms. Did Stanley Ann's mom do this for her while Stanley Ann was in Seattle (or anywhere)? Who knows? (All birth announcements appeared in the local papers as a matter of course as whoever had the local beat for the HNL Advertiser and the HNL Star-Bulletin got the info from the HI Dept. of Health once a week.)

The grandfather took young Ozero to Davis's house in Hawaii three times a week for indoctrination. Davis is gone but there are witnesses to these visits, Davis's former next door neighbors. All the people in this bizarre "family," including the grandparents, were communists or communist sympathizers. And former Weather Undergrounder Bill Ayers very likely ghost-wrote Ozero's two autobiographies.

You exposed the truth of the matter. Nick wrote: "Producing a "birth-certificate" forgery is a big scam to cover up a minor fact -that the Dunham/Obama marriage was not a real marriage. Is it really worth the political risk of having the scam exposed?"

How is his claim that the forgery is a "minor fact" to avoid some perfectly legal but embarrassing "fact" any less of an Obama defending apologist stealth-defense than one openly slanted in Obama's favor? Everything he wrote (after doing his "research") points to Obama's legitimacy under the Constitution and in the eyes of the American people. How is that helping in exposing his illegitimacy? If he is so well informed and insightful about the nature of Obama's birth certificate (and presumably his citizenship as well), then why was there zero mention of the fact that his election was anti-Constitutional due to his citizenship not being natural citizenship?

His whole approach to the BC image is bogus. He starts and proceeds from the assumption that nearly all of it except maybe one fact is legitimate. Who ever proved the legitimacy of any of it? Who has proven that Ann Dunham was even in the United States when he was born? How is it that Nick conveniently neglected to address the issue of no proof existing that he was born in Hawaii, much less in a Hawaiian hospital? If that information can't be verified then how can one ignore the possibility that he was not even born in the United States? If no one has been able to prove where Ann Dunham was in late July-early August, then how can one conclude that she was not already living in Seattle, and without finding any adoptive parents there, gave birth in Vancouver, as a last ditch effort, where there may have been a chance that the Canadian Salvation Army might find a couple willing to adopted a mixed-race baby?

No one can know anything important as fact, including just how much of the BC is bogus (one item or many items; hospital, Dr. signature, location, etc.) so to leap to a conclusion that all that was faked was something embarrassing is simple illogical and baseless. It's like some superficial tea-time idle conversation turned into a written script without having been submitted to the scrutiny that is deserved and requisite for a subject of such enormous national importance. If Obama will lie about the little things, it's sure as hell that he will lie about the big things. But he would love it if everyone would consume this article's premise of innocent white-lies as being the basis for the most important forgery since an Allied body washed up on the Normandy coast with top secret plans for the D-Day invasion, -plans that were fakes planted by the disinformation experts working for the Allied Command. We only have his word for anything about his life. Not even his ideological and political opposition wants to expose too much. The new Moraniss bio contradicts many things Obama wrote about himself and his past in both of his autobiographies (imagine his state of mind thinking that he is important enough to write two autobiographies before he either turned 50 or become president).

There's evidence of a lot of forgery in the BC he presented last year, according to official sources, and then there's the CT social security number issued to someone apparently born in 1890. His kind of lies need others' help to perpetuate and spread them. What a tangled web they wove five years ago.

The Moraniss Obama bio serves to make the author a tidy sum of cash but not really wound the subject of it when it comes to the election. It's bottom line is that Obama has not been perfectly frank with you, American people, -he's been a little loose with the facts, but there is nothing nefarious here, nothing related to a conspiracy to groom his image for an eventual run for the presidency, -nothing of a fraudulent manufacturing of a history that as written serves to make a whole lot of people sympathize with him and pity the poor lost boy who eventually found his way (thanks to communists, terrorists, a Saudi billionaire and unknown international socialist puppet-masters) and became a quintessential American success story. Errors, bad memory, confusion of facts, and white lies can all be forgiven. But we won't get into deliberate fraudulent ghost-writing, a fraudulent birth certificate, and a fraudulent eligibility that violates the Constitution. AR Nash
